Farmers' Boys-Their Practical Instruction.

In looking, over a farm there is no more interesing portion of it than that assigned to the boys for a garden; es pecially is this so if the farmer himself takes an interest in his boys, and realizes the importance of encouraging and assisting them in their efforts to become practical gardeners.

Farmers too often have so many chores for their boys to do that they do not give them half time enough for recreation, and therefore no time to plant a garden of their own. This is all wrong. The farmer's boy should not be required to work any more hours than the mechanic's boy; he should have time for recreation and for doing some work for himself. There is no better way to drive a boy from the farm than to overwork him; and there is no better way to keep him on the farm than to manifest an interest in his welfare, give him time for recreation, and make that recreation as far as possible elevating and instructive. The boy who, when out of school, is required to spend every hour at work for his father dropping eorn in a large field, weeding long rows of onlons, digging potatoes in a field so large that it seems to have no end, and husking corn from a heap that is en-larged from the field before it is exhausted, has no desire or courage to add to his labors by having a garden of his own, or in fact to stay on the farm a single moment after he has become his own master. But a boy who is not required to become one of the farm hands as soon as school is out, who works Powell Clayton always would back a only as a volunteer, can very readily become interested in a small garden of his own, and work in it for recreation and instruction. We have seen boys as interested in their gardens as their fathers were in their farms, and as proud to show them to visitors. Such in twenty years by digging "wo'ms boys not only learn habits of industry, foh bait" and selling them. But what without compulsion, but they also learn by practice the wants of growing plants, and at the same time learn to become interested in farm life. A boy will tend his own garden with altogether different feelings from those called up by tending his father's garden. Ownership has a wonderful power over the feelings of boys as well as men.

The boy that commences early in life to practice agriculture for himself on a small scale, becomes interested in obtaining the best results with the least expenditure of money, and not only learns many practical lessons which are of great value in after life, but he becomes so strongly attached to the farm that he has no desire to leave it. In fact the boy who begins to gather up practical knowledge relating to the best methods of producing farm crops, and con-finues it up to manhood, learns one of the most reliable trades that man has ever yet followed. Give the boy a few rods of land to cultivate and then encourage, and if necessary, assist him to make it the most productive portion of the farm; in a few years he will begin to realize that farming is an occupation which requires quite as high intelligence as any other occupation, and also, that the profits of the farm depend in a great measure on the intelligence of the larmer. As soon as he realizes this, he will entertain a higher respect for the eccupation, and will feel a desire to become, not simply a practical farmer but to be able to direct the practice with the highest scientific intelligence. If we are to keep our boys on the farm we must try to make the farm more attractive, and make them feel more independent by giving them ownership; if they can have a garden and raise small fruit or vegetables, and have the privilege of selling what they raise, they will become doubly interested in farm life. A few dollars that a boy carns by his own labor, will do him more good than a large number that may be given to him, for if earned by the sweat of his own brow he is able to realize their true value, and will be very likely to spend them more judiciously than he would if earned by another's labor.-Massachusetts Ploughman.

Queer Places For Cigars.

When the American ship Carrie Bertha, from Matanzas, arrived on Saturday, she was docked at one of the Jersey City piers. She had a miscellaneous cargo, and the customs-house officers in overhauling it, made certain discoveries which led them to believe the ship's manifest-which is supposed to embrace every article in the ship's cargo-seemed to call for. Detectives from the special treasury agent's office in this city visited the ship and found 7,800 fine cigars concealed in various hiding places. Some 2,300 were in a cleverly hidden hole in a bulkhead in the cook's galley, 1,050 were in the lazaretto, 4,250 were in a cask labeled "Pilot bread," and the remainder were in the legs of the captain's writing desk, which were hollowed out and stuffed full of eigars. Alvin Hall, the causes bar extension of flocks, and in captain; Michael K. Simpson, the second mate, and Charles Prince, seaman, were arrested on a charge of attempted smuggling and taken before United States Commissioner Muirheid in Jersey City. The prisoners were held for examination and the booty was given in charge of custodian Isaac Trimble at the custom-house seizure room. - N. Y. Herald.

Discovery in the Catacombs.

It is well known to all who have made anything like a study of ecclesiastical history that we are indebted to the Catacombs at Rome-those subterranean caverns in which so many of the first Gentile Christians were imprisoned, and in which so many of them perishedfor much valuable information in regard to the manners, customs and general usages of the early followers of Jesus. It was the custom of the unfortunate prisoners to while away the dreary and monotonous prison hours by cutting and carving the wall, and thus giving shape to some pious thought or some Christian practice. Much light, for example, is thrown by these representations on the methods of baptism among the first Christians. So also is it with regard to the Lord's Supper. The Catacombs have been often explored, and been frequently published; but it would appear as if their secrets were not yet fully disclosed nor their treasures discovered. The most recent discovery is an outline of the Temple at Jerusalem, traced on glass. The presumption is that the tracery dates back to the early years of the first century, and is probably the work of one who saw the sacred structure with his own eyes.-Ex-

-The horrors of accident are not individual. The Brooklyn bridge crush is followed by the fatal stampede in a Sunderland hall. A great catastrophe is invariably duplicated at another time and place. They can not be effected by the influence of the press. Neither are epidemics of crime wholly effected by the press, any more than epidemic disthat there was more on board than ease. Sin:-My motives for the publication of the most unusual statements which follow, are, first, gratitude for the fact that I have been saved from a most horrible death, and, secondly, a desire to warn all who read

this statement against some of the most deceptive influences by which they have ever been surrounded. It is a fact that to-day thousands of people are within a foot of the grave and they do not know it. To tell how I was caught away from just this po-sition and to warn others against nearing it, are my objects in this communication. On the first day of June, 1881, I lay at my on the first day of June, 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured, for words can never describe it. And yet, if a few years previous, any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, had weighed over 200 pounds and hardly knew, in my own experience, what pain or sickness were Very many people who will read this state ment realize at times that they are unusually tired, and can not account for it. They feel dull and indefinite pains in various parts of the body, and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began. Still I thought it was nothing; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a heavy, and at times a neuralgic, pain in my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid but little attention to it. However, my stomach was out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet I had no idea, even as a physician, that these things meant anything serious or that a monstrous disease was becoming fixed upon me. Candidly, I thought I was suffering from Malaria, and so doctored myself ac cordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing—also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scum appeared upon the surface, and a sediment settled in the bottom. And yet I did not realize my danger, for, indeed, see-ing these symptoms continuelly I feedly

ing these symptoms continually, I finally became accustomed to them, and my suspicion was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the affected organs or in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blind I can not understand.

There is a tarrible interest or all physical There is a terrible future for all physical neglect, and impending danger always brings a person to his senses, even though it may then be too late. I realized, at last, my critical condition and aroused myself to overcome it. And, Oh! how hard I tried! I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the prominent mineral springs in America, and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, nervous prostration; another, malatia; another, dysspepsia; another, heart-disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain; and so on through a long list of common diseases, the symptoms long list of common diseases, the symptoms of all of which I really had. In this way of all of which I really had. In this way several years passed, during all of which time I was steadily growing worse. My condition had really become pitiable. The slight symptoms I at first experienced were developed into terrible and constant disorders—the little twigs of pain had grown to oaks of agony. My weight had been reduced from 207 to 130 pounds. My life was a territors to myself and My life was a torture to myself and friends. I could retain no food upon my stomach, and lived wholly by injections. I was a living mass of pain. My pulse was uncontrollable. In my agony l'irequently fell upon the floor, convulsively clutched the carret, and prayed for death Mar. the carpet, and prayed for death. Morphine had little or no effect in deadening the pain. For six days and nights I had the death-premonitory biccoughs con-stantly. My urine was filled with tube-casts and albumen. I was struggling with Bright's Disease of the kidneys in its last

While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, rector of St. Paul's Church, of this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the course of conversation he mentioned a rem-edy of which I had heard much but had never used. Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures which had come under his observation by means of this remedy, and urged me to try it. As a practicing physician and graduate of the schools I cherished the prejudice both natural and common with all regular practitioners, and derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being the least beneficial. So solicitous, however, was Dr. Foote, that I finally promised I would waive my prejudice and try the remedy he so highly recommended. I began its use on the first day of June and took it according to ons. At first it sickened me; but this I thought was a good sign for me in my debilitated condition. I continued to take it; the sickening sensation departed and I was able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better as also did my wife and friends. My hiccoughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly I was so rejoiced at this improved condi-tion that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover I would both publicly and privately make known this rem-edy for the good of humanity, wherever and whenever I had an opportunity. I also determined that I would give a course of lectures in the Corinthian Academy of Music in this city, sta ing infull the symptons and almost hopelessness of my disease and the remarkable means by which I have been saved. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained twenty-six pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I have thoroughly re-investigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physician, that I believe more than one-half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys. This may sound like a rash statement, but I am pre pared to fully verify it. Bright's disease has no distinctive symtoms of its own, (indeed, it often develops without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity), but has the symptoms of nearly every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate of "Heart-Disease," "Appoplexy," "Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other common diseases, when in reality it was Bright's Disease of the kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is usually supposed to be heart-dis-ease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I in plore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptom of k dney difficulty. Certain agony and possible death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such

I am aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from me, known The following article from the Democrat | as I am, throughout the entire land as a practitioner and lecturer, will arouse the surprise and possible animosity of medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted, but I make the foregoing statements, based upon facts which I am prepared to produce, and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences.

Delicate and Feeble Ladies. Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel sourcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its former elasticity; driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strate upon your vital forces, rendaring you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once, while the special cause of periodical pain are permanently removed. None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women.

Feels Young Again. "My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No phy-sicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over seventy years old. We think there is no other medicine at to use in the family."-A lady, in Providence. BRADFORD, PA., May 8, 1875.

It has cured me of several diseases, such as nervousness, sickness at the stomach, monthy troubles, etc. I have not seen a sick day in year, since I took Hop Bitters. All my neighbors use them. MRS. FANNIE GREEN. $3,000 Lost .- " A tour of Europe that cost mo $3,000, done me less good than one bottle of Hop Bitters; they also cured my wife of fifteen years' nervous weakness, sleeplessness and dyspepsia." R. M., Aubura, N. Y. High Authority. Hop Bitters is not, in any sense, an alcoholic beverage or liquor, and could not be sold for use except to persons desirous of obtaining a medicinal bitters. GREEN B. RAUM, U. S. Com. Inter'l Rev. SOUTH BEOOMINGVILLE, O., May 1, '79. Sins-I have been suffering ten years and I tried your Hop Bitters and it done me more good than all the doctors. MISS S. S. BOONE.

Baby Saved! We are so thankful to say that our nursing baby was permanently cured of a dangerous and protracted constipation and irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.-The Parents, Rochester, N. Y.
